Real Guitar - Strat - LPC

Using with Reaper

Simple strumming/picking in Song Mode

Simply add a MusicLabs track - select songmode tab, enter chords and drag strumming patterns - hey presto.
You can even create your own strumming patterns by selecting right click and insert strum or slow strum.
Doing it this way means you do not see anything on your reaper track - you have to open the FX to see the chords and progress.
This only really works with predefined strumming patterns or really simply home made ones.

Complex or fully controlled strumming/picking

If you want to see the progress or have full control (ie. inserting palm mutes etc) - then use this method.

You can always enter the chords in song mode and initial patterns, then drag the midi to the track. Then select Chords tab for strumming or Solo for picking.

Here you can directly edit the midi - and insert palm mutes etc.
Select 'key switches' to find out what the effects are mapped to.
You now know which keys to press to activate them.
You can actually change them if you want.
